This session is designed to help doctors understand the elements of writing a research paper. The speaker will share insights into what editors look for when they review manuscripts to help participants improve their chances of publication.

The following topics will be covered

- ✓ Clear writing with succinct introduction and structured discussion
- ✓ Fully reported methods and results - in line with standard reporting guidelines
- ✓ Publication ethics including authorship and scientific misconduct
- ✓ Choosing the right journal and peer review process

Through a hands-on exercise, participants will have the opportunity to write an abstract for a research paper.
